What Are Ethos, Pathos, and Logos?

Before diving into examples and worksheets, it's important to have a clear understanding of each rhetorical appeal.

Ethos: Establishing Credibility

Ethos appeals to the speaker's or writer's credibility and authority. It's about convincing your audience that you are trustworthy or knowledgeable enough to speak on a topic. For instance, a doctor discussing health benefits automatically has ethos because of their medical background.

Pathos: Appealing to Emotions

Pathos tugs at the audience's emotions. It can invoke feelings such as pity, anger, happiness, or fear to persuade. Charitable organizations often use pathos by sharing emotional stories to encourage donations.

Logos: Using Logic and Reason

Logos is the appeal to reason. It relies on facts, statistics, evidence, and logical arguments to convince the audience. For example, citing scientific research or using clear data points exemplifies logos.
